WHITE OUT CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE DAY APRIL 30th

It happened to Oprah, it happened to Ellen, it happened to Monique, and it happened to 42,000,000 other reported survivors in the United States. Child sexual abuse is an epidemic affecting 1 in 4 girls, 1 in 6 boys — and only 1 in 10 ever tell. 93% of children are abused by someone they know and the median age is 9.

According to Angela Williams, who details her own journey from victim of child sexual abuse to victor over her circumstances in the new book From Sorrows to Sapphires, “Child sexual abuse is a pandemic in our society — and it is time we face this pandemic with courage to help victims heal.”

WHITE OUT CHILD SEXUAL ABUSE DAY APRIL 30th, wear white to bring awareness, compassion and a platform to stand with child rape victims around the world. Viewers will learn 3 ways to show compassion to a child rape victim, what to say to comfort them, and learn about the healing programs offered by VOICE Today. Victims of all ages are also available for interview.

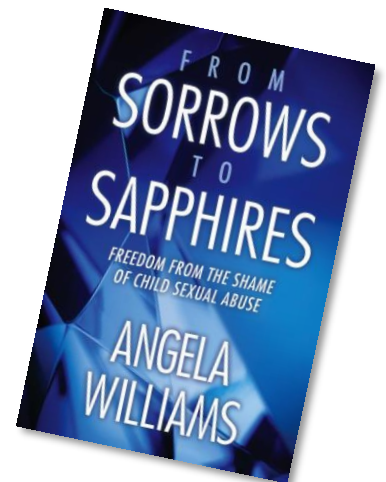

ANGELA WILLIAMS is Founder of Voice Today to end child sexual abuse, and the author of From Sorrows To Sapphires. As a survivor of 14 years of child sexual abuse, she is passionate about saving the innocence of the next generation of children. She serves on the National Coalition to Prevent Child Sexual Abuse and Exploitation and holds a Masters of Forensic Psychology, walking many through the journey of healing.
